The fog is so thick and black that electric and gas-lights cannot dispel the gloom, and the driving of vehicles in the streets is about as dangerous as navigating vessels on the river. Very few vehicles are moving, and it may be said that all business except that which is carried on in-doors is at a stand-still. Several accidents caused by the fog have been reported. The Brighton mail coach got off the road on Thornton Heath, drove into a pend and stuck there in the daytime until help reached its occupants. A fog of the same character prevails all over the country. It is so heavy on the Clyde that all traffic on the river above Greenock has been suspended. The fog also covers the Irish Sea, and the mail-boats between Holyhead and Kingstown have not started on their usual trips to-day.

To sum up.

The inhabitants of Wise county are infinited at such a cold-blooded murder, and are determined to have vengeance. The story of the crime is short. Hilton had arrested one Bates Miles for some petty theft, and was preparing to lodge him in jail, when Hall came up and demanded that he give up the prisoner and pistol. The officer knowing the character of the man assented at once, but before he could make a move the outlaw and third half's pistol penetrated his right breast. Some of his other murders are said to be just as cowardly.

Dr. Oppenheimer gave the Chamber some information as to the Chamber some information as to the mortuary reports of the city, which would tend to indicate that on account of the rigid method adopt-ed for making these reports the true death-rate of Richmond as compared true death-rate of Richmond as compared with that of other cities is not so great as it appears to be. He stated that a map of the city was now being prepared for his department by Colonel Cutshaw. This would show the localines in which the death-rate was greatest and where certain diseases prevailed to the greatest extent, which might lead to the detection in some cases of the causes of mortality.

Dr. Parker, Dr. Hugh M. Taylor, Dr. Shields, Mr. West, Mr. Carter, Mr. Guigen, and Mr. Tabb then argued in favor of the adoption of the report as a whole, and Mr.

Judge Christian, who occupied the chair during the latter part of the meeting, as Colonel Furcell had been obliged to vacate it owing to another imperative engagement, on behalf of the Chamber expressed the profound thanks of that body to the various sub-committees and to the committee of the Chamber for their earnest and laborious investigation of the questions which had been referred to them.

The meeting was altogether one of the most important and interesting that has ever been held by the Chamber, and it is believed that much practical good must result from the earnest consideration and able discussion of these matters, which not only occupied the consideration of the sub-committees, formed as they were from the organizations in the city best qualified to deal with them, but also the careful consideration of the board and the assistance of the city officials and our local experts.

WANT THE STREET WIDENED.

The Manchester Kailway and Improvement Company has made a proposition to the city of Manchester to pay for widening up to the corporation line for the privilege of running their cars up Hull from Twenty is to give the rallway company 4 per cent. bonds to run for thirty years in return for the cash money to be paid for the condemnation of the necessary property.

The railway company may make a similar proposition to the county, as the street will have to be widened in the county for at least one square above the corporation ine.

Miss Straus and Mr. Rosenbaum Married—
Miss Pollard and Mr. Dobyns.
One of the most fashionable weddings which has occurred this season took place last night at Beth Ahaba Synagogue, when Mr. Joseph M. Rosenbaum led to the altar Miss Sara M. Straus.

The hour set for the marriage was 8:30 o'clock, but long before that time the house of worship was filled with friends of the couple. The main auditorium of the edince was crowded, while the galleries were likewise occupied by a considerable gathering.

were likewise occupied by a considerable gathering.

The altar, which was decorated with white, was banked in palms and potted plants, while the aisles were covered with cloth of the same material. Professor Remhardt presided at the organ, and the ceremony was performed by Rabbi E. N. Calisch with unusual solemnity and impressiveness. The bride, who is a strikingly handsome brunette, entered the church leaning upon the arm of her father. She was dressed in an exquisite costume of white faille, with chiffon and feather trimmings, and carried a bouquet of lifes of the valley and bride roses, tied with green ribbon. She wore no ornaments.

pair received under a double heart of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosenbaum left on the 3:20 A. M. Danville train for the South, and their trip, which embraces Florida, will extend as far as Cuba.

The groom, who is vice-president of the Goodman Manufacturing Company, is a sou of the late M. A. Rosenbaum. He is well known and popular in business circles. His bride, a daughter of Mr. Julius Straus, has for several seasons been considered one of the most beaunful and accomplished ladies in this city.

hall of the House of Delegates. Hon. William Wirt Henry presided, and the first paper read was by Hon. R. T. Barton, of Winchester. His subject was "The First Election of Washington to the House of Burgesses." The paper brought out some interesting facts connected with the local interesting facts connected with the local history of Winehester, and gave a sketch of Washington's defeat the first time he stood for the position and of his subsequent success in 1758. It also presented some facts regarding Washington's opponents, the election qualifications of the period, etc., and the issue of the election which was to obtain necessary supplies for the troops on the frontier. One theory of Mr. Barton's was that probably Washington's wife had a good deal to do with his desire for a seat in the House, and he showed that Washington was very human as regards conducting a political campaign and securing votes. and securing votes.

THE OLD BRICK CHURCH. THE OLD BRICK CHURCH.

Hon. R. S. Thomas read a paper on the old brick church near Smithfield. Mr. Thomas gave a sketch of the topography of the country around Smithfield and described the location of the church, which, he said, was the oldest Protestant church in this country, having been built in 1632. He cited tradition, quoted from records, and exhibited a brick taken from the walls of the church and stamped 1632 in support of his contention.

RICHMOND'S FIRST ACADEMY.

The next paper was on "Richmond's first academy, projected by M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire in 1785," the author being Mr. Richard Heywood Gaines. Mr. Gaines's paper gave a brief but interesting outline of this ambitious scheme for higher education and the fostering of science and development of the country, and mentioned the names of a number of persons in Virginia and elsewhere who exhibited an interest in it. He also gave a partial list of the foreign associates of the Richmond Academy, and made prominent the fact that Mr. Jefferson was in favor of introducing higher French educatin Virginia. Mr. Gaines's conclusion was that if the scheme had materialized Richmond would have become the intellectual centre not only of the South, but of the Union. BICHMOND'S FIRST ACADEMY.

EARLY AGRICULTURE IN VIRGINIA.

Mr. Philip A. Bruce read a paper on "Agriculture in Virginia During the First Twenty Years of the Colony." The agricultural developments during this period, contended Mr. Bruce, bear a close relation to all of the future developments along this line. All subsequent work had experienced the usefulness of the plantation period. He then described vividly the early planting, the cleaning of forests, &c., and dwelt particularly upon the experiments of Smith in cultivating the indigenous plants of the country. From this he passed to the cultivation of tocacco and the work of Rolfe in this direction, and pointed out that the distinction between planter and farmer goes back to those days. In conclusion, he summarized the status of agriculture in Virginia about the end of the period of which his paper treated.

BACON'S REBELLION.

Death of an Estimable Lady.

Mrs. Margaret E. Stansfield, wife of Mr. Edwin Stansfield, died at her home, 2201 east Broad street, yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. She had been complaining for several days, but her case was not considered serious until Saturday last.

Mrs. Stansfield was highly esteemed in the community, and by her kindly spirit and readiness to serve her neighbors, had endeared herself to a large circle of friends. She was one who found real pleasure in ministering to the comfort and happiness of others. She was a consistent and useful Christian and a member of Trinity Methodist church.

> McAdams & Berry's CLOTHIERY.

"Then plain and open nature sees mankind, But in appearances not what they are."

Here you have the influence of Clothing—the advantage of the well-dressed man over the slouch. Verily, the importance of neat and stylish apparel cannot be overestimated. But you reason, How can I keep up in this respect with my neighbor who has a fatter purse than I?

Don't let that worry you. All you have to do is to watch the opportunities occasionally presented by "THE BOSTON," and if you're shrewd you'll make every dollar go as far as your neighbor's two. Right now, for instance, during the progress of "THE BOSTON'S" GREAT UNLOADING SALE, you have a chance to prove what wise purchasing will do for a man.
